

The Emperor's New Clothes

Copyright © 2004 by Linda Ward Beech

Introduction

Good morning, ladies and gentlemen! Thank you for coming to see my play "The Emperor's New Clothes!"

Today we are going to tell you the story of an emperor who loved new clothes. He had beautiful, colorful, fancy clothes made for him.

But he is never happy. He always wants more and more beautiful clothes. So he hires two dishonest weavers to make him more beautiful clothes.

Scene 1: The Emperor Wants a New Suit

Emperor: Oh, no, no! I don't feel the clothes I'm wearing.

Emperor: Why do you feel that? What's wrong? Why are you sad? What do you need?

Emperor: I don't like my clothes. I want more.

Emperor: (to the weavers) Make me something!

Weaver 1: Yes, we'll make you the most beautiful clothes ever.

Weaver 2: They will be the most beautiful clothes ever. They are perfect!

Emperor: How lovely! These clothes are wonderful! They are for you!

Emperor: Oh! They are just for you!

Emperor: The king made for the king's father. They bring his wife's requests.

Emperor:

Emperor: How is it?

Emperor: How is it?

Emperor: How are you feeling?

Emperor: How are you feeling?

Emperor: How is it?

Emperor: How is it?

Emperor: Oh, no, no! I don't feel the clothes. The king's father's wife's requests.

Emperor: Oh, no, no! I don't feel the clothes. The king's father's wife's requests.

Emperor: How are you feeling? How are you feeling? How are you feeling?

Emperor: How are you feeling? How are you feeling?

Emperor: How are you feeling? How are you feeling?

Emperor: How are you feeling? How are you feeling?

Emperor: How are you feeling? How are you feeling?

Emperor: How are you feeling? How are you feeling? How are you feeling?

Emperor: How are you feeling? How are you feeling?

Emperor: How are you feeling? How are you feeling?

Emperor: How are you feeling? How are you feeling?

Emperor: How are you feeling? How are you feeling?

Emperor: How are you feeling? How are you feeling?

Emperor: How are you feeling? How are you feeling?

Emperor: How are you feeling? How are you feeling?

Emperor: How are you feeling? How are you feeling?