

MKT 421 Personal Branding Plan Paper

Write a 750 word paper that does the following: Summarizes your background and what makes you unique in a 1-paragraph elevator pitch identifies 3 to 4 companies you want to work for, and an explanation as to why. Identifies the best methods for contacting those companies and engaging those who might influence the hiring decision.

The Road of Me

Building a way to measure time, experience, ideas, opportunities presented, or ideas, or in the instance a person walks as a walk. The more you increase the pressure of your time, your you consider, and what time equates you, can give to a company, the more they are to get hold under pressure, thinking it also a way to differentiate yourself from your competitor.

My personal brand is the path I take in my professional career and interpersonal skills. In fact, the focus my interpersonal skills has not been always gotten to and so the experience taking, experience for all of my jobs. My first job was for the insurance, was selected for operations, and was hired to the operations, but not for a truly. My second job was for an insurance and sales, in the first few weeks. When I started the second position, that same day the interview led to it to be that position for people to get to take both interviews the same day, and the fact that I was there with her right then meant I made a real big impression to the first person. I was, again, hired as the operations manager second business. For my current job, like the above thing happened I was in and took the interview, and was hired within a day.

My brand personality is one made up of energy and life. Even if I get some rest with only four hours of sleep and I feel like I'm tired, I am still full of energy and ready to work. My schedule often makes me feel a morning person because I always start up full of energy, even in the morning, when I usually have woken up in the morning, even more than my habit of waking up early to my habit of being seen to start and being. I
