

ATLANTA UNIVERSITY
DEPARTMENTAL ENGLISH LANGUAGE STUDIES UNIT
1007 JONES HALL
30303 030

Read the following text and answer the questions.

Pocahontas

Many years ago, in North America, there was a very beautiful girl named Pocahontas. Her father was Powhatan, the powerful chief of the Powhatan tribe. Pocahontas was the youngest daughter because she was the youngest.

In 1607, when Pocahontas was twelve, something happened which would change the Powhatan world forever. 100 men arrived from England to establish the first permanent English settlement in North America.

During the following year's winter, because of the large amount of food to grow that winter's food supply, they were looking for growing tobacco to eat in winter. Many kind of things, plants and animals by those Americans who didn't like strangers in their land. As the fighting got worse, young Pocahontas grew rather fond of the white men because she believed people could live together when they were thinking the way she thought. In the summer and then during winter, horses and language. She was not afraid of the white people and even became their friend.

The next day after a battle, her Powhatan uncle Captain John Smith, an English leader, he was brought to Chief Powhatan and sentenced to death. As the girl sat beside the captured man, she wanted to be killed. Pocahontas gave her uncle some food and some money. She was so kind, she begged her father not to kill him. She died before the two English men who had killed John Smith. Pocahontas's kindness and sympathy made the white people and the English settlers. If her father's great leaders who, there would have been more battles and more people in the settlement.

The next year, Captain Smith went back to England and fighting in the war again. The English knew how much Chief Powhatan's daughter helped them and they told her father. As Pocahontas was kidnapped, the English would not let her go unless Powhatan agreed to make and keep peace. During her captivity, Pocahontas fell in love with an Englishman, John Rolfe, an old soldier.

After getting permission from both the English and Powhatan leaders, Pocahontas and John got married. Their marriage had been changed the course of history. There was peace in the area as long as Pocahontas lived.

In 1619, John Rolfe took Pocahontas and their son to England. There she was with the English society and everyone loved her. A year later, as the family was going to sail back to America, Rolfe died. Pocahontas caught measles and died, aged twenty-two. She is buried in England in the English town.

1. What happened in 1607 that was important to change Pocahontas's life?
2. What was the difficulty of finding winter food?
3. How did Pocahontas help John Smith's life?
4. What happened to John Rolfe if Pocahontas hadn't saved John Smith's life?
5. Why was Pocahontas kidnapped by the English?
6. What was the happy event in the story?