

Checking Account

A. Reading

Rene is engaged to her boyfriend Kyle. They plan to get married in May, and they are celebrating it with a month-long wedding and honeymoon. Kyle wants to open a joint checking account in both of their names, but Rene wants the like having her own bank account. She has a savings account and a checking account, and she doesn't want another account. Kyle is thrilled with his money, and if he opens a bank account with her, he might not have to explain why she withdraws money from the account the night before he has to take the bride's bouquet straightaway into their account. Kyle thinks that Rene doesn't trust him. He asks, "Can't you get married if the bank just takes? What should Rene do?" Should she open a joint checking account with Kyle?
