

If Someone Breaks the Rules About Private Parts

As you remember, private means something belongs just to you, that isn't meant to be shared with other people.

So what should you do if you ever feel that someone is trying or does break the rules of body safety?

You want to try to get away from that person or situation, but even if you can't - the most important thing is to tell someone. If someone else breaks the rules, it's not your fault and you won't be in trouble.

How should I try to get away?

You can say no. You're even allowed to yell at the person. You could make up an excuse, like you feel sick or have to go to the bathroom. But if you can't get away, it's not your fault. You just need to tell someone.

What if they accidentally touch our privates, touch us in a funny way or talk about private parts with us?

Anytime someone makes you feel uncomfortable - by what they do or say, you can talk to someone in your body safety circle. We'll help figure out what needs to be done.

What if they say it'll be in trouble or that they'll hurt me or someone else?

It may seem scary if someone says that. Anytime someone threatens you - we will believe you and protect you from that person. Remember that there are many people in your safety circle to keep you safe.
