

AUTHOR'S BIOGRAPHY

Roald Dahl wrote his first story in 1936. He wrote his first book, Goodnight Mister Tom, in 1946. Two years later, he wrote The BFG, which was published in 1948. After that he wrote many more books for children. He wrote The Witches in 1963 and The BFG in 1982. He also wrote The Boy Who Swam with Piranhas and The Enormous Turnip. He has written many other books for children. He has also written for adults. He has written The Goodies and The Witches. He has also written for the stage. He has written The BFG and The Witches. He has also written for the screen. He has written The BFG and The Witches. He has also written for the radio. He has written The BFG and The Witches. He has also written for the television. He has written The BFG and The Witches. He has also written for the film. He has written The BFG and The Witches. He has also written for the stage. He has written The BFG and The Witches. He has also written for the screen. He has written The BFG and The Witches. He has also written for the radio. He has written The BFG and The Witches. He has also written for the television. He has written The BFG and The Witches. He has also written for the film. He has written The BFG and The Witches.

THE LADLADY

Copyright © 2014 by Roald Dahl

ROALD DAHL

May pretend the gentleman is right or wrong. If he's wrong, make it worse.

- [] Billy wants to stay.
- [] The gentleman is right.
- [] The gentleman is wrong.
- [] Billy wants to stay in the gentleman's house.
- [] The gentleman is a gentleman.
- [] There are no other people staying there.
- [] Billy wants to stay.
- [] The gentleman is a gentleman.
- [] Billy has something to think.
- [] The gentleman is Billy.
- [] The gentleman is the gentleman who has the gentleman.