Chapter One

Look at the three summaries below of chapter one. Choose the best one.

Summary One

Robert Smith is a strange boy who has many talents. He knows how to play the violin and this is why he is popular at school. He likes reading horoscopes because he thinks they are funny. He likes his name Robert Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart because he enjoys classical music and he would like to go to school dressed like Mozart. Sometimes, he likes to play jokes on the other students at school. One day he told them that there was a fire and they believed him. Another time, he hid under his desk and told them an asteroid was going to hit earth. The teachers think he is a naughty child. The other students call him Chicken Licken because he loves eating chicken.

Summary Two

Robert Smith is always telling lies. He told everyone at school there was a fire when there was not. He also told everyone his real name was Wolfgang Amadeus but his parent really called him Robert Smith. He does not like the other children at school and he prefers to play his violin and ride his mountain bike on his own. He has a computer which he uses to find his horoscope on the internet. The other children call him Chicken Licken because he loves animals.

Summary Three

Robert Smith is the narrator of the story. He is always worrying about something. On his first day at school he thought there was a fire when he heard the bell ring for breaktime. At school he does not have many friends because they think that he is different. They laugh at him because of his name, which is Robert Wolfgang Amadeus Smith. His parents chose that name because they like classical music. The other children also think he is different because he plays the violin. Robert also believes in horoscopes and one day he told everyone at school that the world was going to be destroyed by an asteroid. His nickname is Chicken Licken because this character also thought the sky was going to fall down.
