

AIRPORT

A—What time does your plane leave?

B—I leaves at 12:45, but I have to check at departure regular, when I arrive there.

A—When do you have to be at the airport?

B—I have to be there nearly one hour before the departure at 12:15 and then I have to go to the check in desk. An hour later I have to go to the customs section and then go through the immigration section into the departure lounge. I have to wait there for another hour or so before I board the plane.

A—That means you have to leave the house at 9:15.

B—Well it's not better to get there, if there are no traffic problems. So maybe better if we leave at 8:15?

A—Yes, I'm better to get there two early than too late.

B—I agree. You never know what might happen on those freeways. There's a recent car huge accident everyday. I'm also nervous about the time the plane takes off. It's my first time flying. When I arrive in New York and the plane lands on the runway, Gordon has to be at arrivals waiting for me. We have to go to the meeting and then when I get back from New York I have to inform in the office about my business trip.
