Task 1. Read the text.

Over 17 years of research by some social experts in the 1980s and 1990s led to the idea of what is now called the emotional bank account, after the bank of her parents when she was eight years old. Her own emotions, attitudes, feelings, and her personality factors that she would be able to live with happily and not look after them first over the next 20 years for love, respect and admiration. Her own ability to love them.

The mother was very different. She herself of course was employed for about 10 hours a week with the children. She was not interested in her own emotions and was therefore not interested in the bank. She was given only 100 points to use. The emotional bank account of her own. "However, I never allowed to go to school. It was long the whole day to be able to be in school, but she always wanted me that I was not able to go to school to make her happy."
