

Connectives

Here are some one-word connectives.

and            but            when            because or              for              as                though

Choose a different one of these connectives to link each of the paired sentences below.
Remember: Connectives are words or phrases that link together different parts of a text.
Connectives that link sentences, clauses, or parts of phrases are called conjunctions.

I fell over. I hurt my knee. _____

_____

The game ended. The referee blew his whistle. _____

_____

She couldn't ride her bike. It had a puncture. _____

_____

I couldn't spell that word. I looked the dictionary. _____

_____

We arrived on time. The train was delayed. _____

_____

Here are some words and phrases that can also be used as connectives.

also            however            this means            for example            as this

Fit the connectives above into the spaces in these three paragraphs.

Many kinds of words can be used to connect ideas in a piece of writing. For example, pronouns, adverbs, and conjunctions are all useful.

The important thing is that we can make our writing more varied and more interesting to read. As a result, the words we choose can help us to make our meaning clearer to our readers.

If possible, we should try not to use too many of these connectives in a short piece. But sometimes they can make our sentences long and confusing.