

Herald and Orest

These were the good woodcutters who lived with their wife and three children, named Herald and Orest. They were very poor. The woodcutter worked hard every day, because there was not enough food for his wife and three children. One day the woodcutter went to the forest and cut some wood. He brought it home and sold it for some money. He bought some food for his wife and three children. He was very happy. One day the woodcutter went to the forest and cut some wood. He brought it home and sold it for some money. He bought some food for his wife and three children. He was very happy.

Herald and Orest played all day. One day Herald went to the forest and cut some wood. He brought it home and sold it for some money. He bought some food for his wife and three children. He was very happy. One day the woodcutter went to the forest and cut some wood. He brought it home and sold it for some money. He bought some food for his wife and three children. He was very happy. One day the woodcutter went to the forest and cut some wood. He brought it home and sold it for some money. He bought some food for his wife and three children. He was very happy.

One day Herald and Orest went to the forest and cut some wood. They were very happy. One day the woodcutter went to the forest and cut some wood. He brought it home and sold it for some money. He bought some food for his wife and three children. He was very happy. One day the woodcutter went to the forest and cut some wood. He brought it home and sold it for some money. He bought some food for his wife and three children. He was very happy.