

ablaut	direct speech	participle abstract noun	discourse marker	passive accent	ellipsis	perfect acronym	emphasis	person active	emphatic pronoun	phrase adjective	ending	phrasal verb adverb	extralinguistic reality	plural adverbial	finite verb	polysemy affirmative sentence	formal	possessive affix	function word	predicate agent	gender	predicative alliteration	genitive	prefix ambiguity	gerund	preposition anaphora	grammar	preterite antecedent	head	progressive antonymy	homograph	proper noun apposition	homophone	pro-form article	homonym	pronoun attributive	hybrid	quantifier auxiliary verb	hyperonym	question tag back-formation	hyponym	reported speech base form	idiolect	root blending	idiom	's genitive borrowing	imperative	sentence case	indirect object	simple tense clause	indirect speech	singular cleft sentence	infinitive	slang cohesion	informal	sociolect collocation	-ing form	standard colloquial	intensifier	statement common noun	interrogative	stress comparative	intransitive	strong form complement	irregular	style compound	jargon	subject concord	lexeme	subordinate clause concrete noun	lexical verb	substitution conditional	lexis	sub-standard conjunction	lingua franca	suffix connotation	mass noun	superlative context	metalanguage	synonym continuous	metaphor	taboo word contraction	modal verb	temporal co-ordinate clause	modifier	tense copula	monosemy	transitive core vocabulary	mood	uncount / uncountable count / countable noun	negative	noun defective verb	non-finite verb	verb denotation	noun	verb aspect dependent clause	number	voice determiner	paradigm	weak form direct object	paraphrase	word

Sources: Swan, M. (1999): Practical English Usage.

Hladký, J; Růžička, M.; Vlčková, J. (1998): Úvod do studia anglického jazyka.