

Course #	User	SLO
ACCT 103	Gilbert F. Noble	1. A student will be able to analyze a fact situation, determine what is pertinent, and create a balance sheet. 2. A student will be able to analyze a fact situation, determine what is pertinent, and create an income statement.
ACCT 105	Sherry L. Gordon	1 A student will be able to analyze a fact situation relating to a single person, determine what information is needed, and do a tax return that reflects the appropriate treatment of the situation. 2 A student will be able to analyze a fact situation relating to a married couple, determine what information is needed, and do a tax return that reflects the appropriate treatment of the situation.
ACCT 106	Sherry L. Gordon	1 A student will be able to analyze a fact situation related to a single individual, determine what details are appropriate to the situation, and prepare a proper tax return based on the facts. 2 A student will be able to analyze a fact situation related to a married couple, determine what details are appropriate to the situation, and prepare a proper tax return based on the facts.
ACCT 107	Sherry L. Gordon	A student will be able to analyze a fact situation for a corporation, determine a strategy to prepare a tax return and then prepare a tax return appropriate to the situation. A students will be able to analyze a fact situation for a partnership, determine a strategy to prepare a tax return, and then prepare a tax return appropriate for the situation. A students will be able to analyze a fact situation for an S corporation, determine a strategy to prepare a tax return, and then prepare atax retrun appropriate for the situation.
ACCT 110	Leah J. Martin-Klement	1. Integrate accounting theory, concepts and practice with accounting software. 2. Master the accounting software package for daily, weekly, monthly, yearly accounting practices. 3. Apply the use of accounting software in the private sector or for home bookkeeping and accounting use.
ACCT 115	Sherry L. Gordon	A student will be able to analyze a fact situation dealing with payroll, determine a strategy for preparing payroll tax returns, and then prepare the returns appropriate to the situation. A student will be able to analyze a fact situation dealing with sales taxes, determine a strategy for preparing sales tax returns , and then prepare a sales tax return appropriate to the situation.