Name of Author:
Name of Peer:

Peer Conference Checklist

Revising Checklist	Editing Checklist
The author's ideas are clearly stated and developed.	I have circled any words that I wasn't sure about the spelling for and have used a resource to look up and check the spelling of
The characters and/or narrator have feelings that are shown through dialogue	the words.
and/or internal thoughts.	I have checked the commonly misused homophones to make sure the author always
The setting is described in a way that	uses the right word in each sentence.
allows the reader to visualize where it is taking place.	(Examples: to, too, two, their, there, they're, it's, its, your, you're)
The characters are described in a way	I have checked this piece for sentence that allows the reader to visualize their personality and appearance.	fragments and run-on sentences to make sure that all the sentences are complete
The ideas flow nicely from one to the	sentences.
next. The piece is organized in a way that isn't choppy or confusing to the reader.	I have checked this piece for the correct use of commas.
The words in this piece are descriptive	I have checked this piece for the and keep the reader entertained.	correct use of apostrophes, including apostrophes with contractions and
The voice throughout the story reflects ideas that are from the author and not	apostrophes to show possession.
copied from anyone else.	I have read this piece out loud to myself to check for sentence fluency.
	, series to series in the interior.
	I have used resources and asked questions about parts of this piece that I wasn't sure how to edit.