

Process paragraph practice

Process paragraph quiz

Read the following statements and decide whether they are true or false.

1. If steps in a process paragraph include too many steps in a row, simplify the paragraph, the writer can identify one specific part of the process to describe in a process paragraph. ____
2. An effective topic sentence in a process paragraph signals to the reader that a certain step in a recipe, especially process will follow in the paragraph. ____
3. The main kinds of, products, and characteristics associated with the subject often are in topic sentences for process paragraphs. ____
4. The following topic sentence begins with an effective opening and indicates that a process will follow in the paragraph: There are five steps to preparing ____
5. In an individual process paragraph, the writer gives directions to the reader, as the process paragraph and other paragraph. ____
6. In a process paragraph, the writer needs to pay special attention to how or how readers by providing the level of details they will need to duplicate the process. ____
7. An underdeveloped paragraph may lack secondary details for certain steps, or it may lack one or more steps that are necessary to duplicate the process. ____
8. Coherence in a process paragraph can be developed by repeating key words from the topic sentence and by using special order to organize the details. ____
9. For a process paragraph to have unity, each step and all of the secondary details must support the topic sentence within the organizing idea of the paragraph. ____
10. In process paragraphs, writers avoid words such as the, an, and in as acceptable parts of language reader can understand the direction. Example: Remove parameters fully. ____

Writing 3

Write three sentences in each correct order

Culture Shock

- a. The writer has usually learned the language and is then able to judge it himself or herself.
- b. Having passed through these stages of culture shock, the writer may even eventually return home with regret at having lost his or her adopted home.
- c. The process of reacting and adjusting to a new society, sometimes called culture shock, has five distinct stages.
- d. A hostile attitude is typical of the second stage, which develops at that point when the individual has to cope seriously with the day-to-day problems of housing, shopping, transportation, and so forth.