LULLUJI was a beautiful , pretty, obedient little girl who liked to work. Lulluja was very busy , and she devoted all kinds of work. She never studies , she never did her homework. Her mother always scolded her. Lulluja had low school grades. Because she makes effort to study her teacher also scolded and punished her. All Lulluja ever wanted to do was play in the garden, build sand castles and pick flowers.

One day , as she went out to play, she noticed a pile of stones. As she got closer to the pile, she also saw a lot of grass on the ground and an army of ants, busy at work.

"What are you doing there, little girl?" Lulluja asked one ant. "I am making provisions for the winter months. Likewise, what we will put there in our ant-hill," answered the ant.

"The task is difficult, and we are small, but we are active and persevering," continued the ant.

"I do not have to work as often as you, my father brings us food and takes care of us," Lulluja told the ant.

"Our home is made of stones and in the winter, it protects us from the cold wind and rain. It is not good to be lazy!"

"You busy little girl. You do not seem to have concern for anyone but yourself," said the ant.

"Working conscientiously without effort and hard work. How ungrateful you are. While you play, your father wants to earn a living."

"One day, your father may get sick. Then, who is going to provide for your pleasure?" asked the ant.

"When you work hard, you must happily know that job was well done."

Lulluja was quiet. She was listening to what the ant was saying. She followed her.

She decided she was going to change her life. She decided to study and work hard to improve her grades. Lulluja studied hard , she passed her exams. Her parents and her teacher were pleased with the results.
