

Mystery dialogue

A: What do you do M?
M: I'm a claims adviser
A: And how do you find customers?
M: Erm, some find us, erm, some people, we find on the street, and some people, we knock on their doors
A: You knock on people's doors?
M: Yeah
A: And what do you say?
M: We just, eh, tell them that we're there at the moment and we're trying to find people that are entitled to compensation
A: Oh, you're ambulance chasers!
M: We're very much ambulance chasers
A: So you're responsible for our insurance premiums going up and up and up because you're encouraging people who wouldn't normally claim to claim so you can make money.
M: Correct

Questions:

1. Do you think A is a man or a woman? Do you think M is a man or a woman?
2. Who do you think these people are?
3. Where do you think this exchange is taking place?
4. Does A approve or disapprove of what M does for a living? How do you know?
5. Find words or phrases that mean:
 - To attempt to get money from your insurance company after a burglary, accident, fire, etc.
 - The money that you pay your insurance company each month or year.
 - To deserve / have the right to
6. What do you think A's next question will be (you are about to see the interview in full)?