

- o Next, explain one or two of the opposing side's points to show how readers might object to your argument. Then, show how these arguments are not reasonable, not logical, or are ineffective. Be sure to repeat your own strongest points, too, for the last time.

Final Steps: Review and Edit

- 1) Review that your reader can understand your points. The reader should understand them all and appreciate the writing without any aggressive language and the writing style of addressing your reader directly, politely, and respectfully. Repeat your points, if necessary.
- 2) Do your research.
- 3) To increase the chances that your reader will agree with you, start each paragraph with ideas that both sides agree upon before arguing your case.
- 4) Show the other side's strongest arguments to defend against challenges from other readers or your audience.
- 5) To your audience, emphasize why your topic is important, summarize your arguments, and restate your position in the most credible manner. Do not include new evidence or arguments.

Bibliography

Representative Essay: "Essay 1" (2010) and "Essay 2" (2010) (2010)

Writing Guide: "How to Write an Argumentative Essay" (2010) and "The Best Way to Write an Essay" (2010) (2010)