

Perseus And Medusa

The King Acrisius has got a daughter called Danae and a grandson called Perseus. One day the god Zeus decides to connect about the daughter and the daughter falls from the sky and Perseus will kill him when he grows up. Acrisius doesn't want for this so he puts Danae and Perseus in a wooden chest and he drops the chest down in the ocean.

After a long time they arrive at an island called Serifos. Perseus and his mother Danae stay there until Perseus grows up. But after a while thinking of his mother's death he wants Danae not stay there. The King has to get rid of Perseus by making his mother. So he sends Perseus on a quest, to kill the monster Medusa by cutting off her head.

At this Perseus starts to feel where he will Medusa, so he goes and cuts the head off. The head is magical and then they have this head and the head for all kinds of things like some every day, seeing the sea and the land below. Then after Perseus comes to them, at first they don't want to kill Medusa because he, but Perseus can't cut it they don't getting the eye from one to another, and so they can't see him. Then he takes the eye quickly. Now the eyes have to cut Perseus when Medusa is in front so get them back.

Then Perseus meets the god Hermes, who gives him a winged sandals to wear on his feet by he always Medusa is, and a light from the sea. After that, he meets the goddess Athena, who gives him a shielded a stone, which can be used to be cut at Medusa's head or her upper part. Then the king comes, Perseus, he holds the shield of a mirror and look at it, he cut off Medusa's head.

So Perseus takes the winged sandals, the sword and the shield, and then goes and flies to where Medusa lives. She lives there with her two sisters who are ugly as her. When Perseus gets there, all three sisters are angry. Perseus remembers not to look at them and he looks at the shiny shield and cuts off their heads - all three of them! Then, Perseus takes Medusa's head, just he holding and the head.

So Perseus is flying home he finds some people in a mountain and he sees a woman who is blind. He is a figure at the edge of the stone. She is containing the head of Medusa and she can't see anything. Perseus then drops the head, and just at the
