

MY PERSONAL IDENTITY

Our personal identity is made up of everything from the east,
From language to attire, traditions, ideology and art.
English is what I speak from week to week,
But my Vietnamese side is what makes me unique.
Although I'm starting to learn French because it's a neat twist,
My attire shouldn't play a big part in who I am.
What I wear and how I look is no big exam.
The way I drive may just be an image to you all,
But to me it defines the person I want to be, as I may recall.
Traditions are big in my family,
It helps us bond together in harmony.
Family gatherings and celebrations here and there,
I was raised with a key to respect, question it if you dare.
As an individual I follow my own way,
Living life according to me day by day.
Although living in Canada I hold a collective view too,
Sharing the same values with people of the same crew.
