

Phoenix Square (G)

At this, the main intersection of the Grand City of Aylor, the road is shiny and black as if paved with ebony. The road extends east and west, reaching across the entire city. In the center of this large square stands a black and pink alabaster statue. Beneath the statue, many solicitors try to grab the attention of passersby. To the north is the white marble temple. To the south, you gaze upon a large plaza with eight silver spires piercing the sky.

[Exits: north east south west up down]

A large black and pink statue sprays streams of water into the air.
