

This here is the most normal kind of speech balloon. Its plain and to the point, signifying casual and calm speech.

The shout balloon is portrayed as an explosion. By using this we know that the speech inside should be loud, no matter what is written in it. The jagged edges and menacing exterior makes this a powerful speech balloon.

This is a classic one used for when characters are whispering. I believe the significance of the dotted line is to show that they're not using their full voice when speaking, thus giving the sense of whispering.