

Study Blankheit

For the following sentences, 1) underline all the independent clauses (ICs) and the dependent clauses (DCs); 2) then show each dependent clause, with whether it is a noun clause, adjective clause, or adverb clause; 3) finally, underline each sentence, with indicating if sentence it is simple, compound-complex, or compound-complex.

1. He closed the window.
2. He loved to read books.
3. They were the first ever to go to space.
4. The need for the working women for childcare at the office makes the transition easier.
5. Although this is often the case, sometimes computers do not work as well as they should.
6. When someone is hospitalized, it is important to know the person's ability to perform work.