The Capture of Fire

Goodah, a noted magician, captured a piece of lightning as it struck a dead tree during a storm. He improvised it as a convenient way to make fire for his own use and ignored demands that he share this wonderful discovery. At last the tribe became so annoyed with Goodah that a group of elders called up a wharrawid just as Goodah had made a fire with his piece of lightning. The wharrawid picked up the fire and scattered it all over the country, and fire became common property when members of the tribe picked up enough burning wood to make fires for themselves.

To escape the jeers and laughter of the tribe, Goodah fled to the hills to mull, and to plan revenge.
