by

In a forest far away there lived a porcupine named Chocolate. He was not the only animal that lived in the forest. There were chipmunks, squirrels, rabbits, and foxes. The forest was an exciting place to live. However, Chocolate was not invited to play with the other animals. They did not like him because sometimes he accidentally shot his prickles at them. So Prickles tried to takes his prickles off his back, but that did not work. Then he tried to put mud on his back to cover them up, but that did not work either. Then he put a shoe on his head to hide them, but that did not work. So he went home and pouted. Suddenly he heard a loud coyote howling –HowlHowlHowwwlllll! He sprinted out of his house and found the coyote. He shot his prickles at the coyote and the coyote ran away. Prickles was a hero!
