

News Magazine Video

Your group has chosen to write, film, and produce a 10-15 minute news magazine video that demonstrates what all of you have learned this semester about your Junior Research Question. Your show must contain at least 3 distinct segments which reflect a diversity of opinions and perspectives on the issue.

Watch several news magazine shows while you are working on your project. Notice how the show begins, music and lighting details, how the director cuts away to each segment, what the set looks like, etc. Watch carefully to see how the interviews are filmed. Does the cameraman use close-up shots of their faces the whole time? How often does the camera switch from the correspondent to the person being interviewed?

You will need to come up with a name for your show and include people's names and roles as credits on your finished video. The video editing software has several templates for the title and credits. The program also allows you several options for cutting from one scene to another.

Read this packet of information carefully. It contains instructions, checklists, worksheets, rubrics, etc. that you need to be successful.

Good luck! We look forward to viewing your show in class between May 19-24.
