

Checking Accounts

A. Reading

Rene is engaged to his boyfriend Kyle. They plan to get married in May, and they will have enough cash to celebrate the wedding and the honeymoon. Kyle wants to open a joint bank account to make the best of their money. Rene is resistant. She has a savings account and a checking account, and she doesn't want another account. Kyle is struggling with his anxiety, and it's going to lead more than just him. He might well have to explain why the联合账户 better than the current one. He might even tell Kyle why he didn't respect a savings account from another bank. Kyle thinks that Rene doesn't trust him. He real they can't trust each other. What should Rene do? She will be open, explaining her point of view.

B. True or False

<input type="checkbox"/>	By the end of the lesson,
<input type="checkbox"/>	Rene has a checking account and a savings account.
<input type="checkbox"/>	Rene has a joint account.
<input type="checkbox"/>	She has the anxiety.
<input type="checkbox"/>	Why open a joint account? She and Kyle will have the balance in your top.

C. Writing – Should Rene open a joint account with Kyle? Why or why not?

Answers – All the answers are correct. There is no right or wrong answer. Students can justify their answer and the teacher can check.