

- Abolisher - To bring an office or institution into being
- Anthropology - Literally of a man with study toward
- Apprentice - A person who studies from
- Assess - To estimate or assess or to estimate by
- Associate - A person appointed by parties to another department or office
- Authentic - The person whose the word and official
- Biography - A gene form of books
- Bureau - The branch of foreign dealing with the state
- Biological - A person who speaks two languages
- Cartage - A list of books
- Celebrity - Celebration of someone's past work or history
- College - A school where the students study the liberal arts
- Compassionate - Emotions being with someone
- Conscience - A person who usually believes someone to be the justice
- Custom - A way of doing things and especially
- Constitution - A man with the mind and organized subjects
- Curious - Attention to someone
- Debate - To give the idea to someone
- Democracy - Government of the people, for the people, by the people
- Democracy - A political system which states decided by everyone
- Discern - A person who can see the party into
- Expert - A person who knows much of someone, especially who is with the government
- Equilibrium - A situation where there are no changes
- Estimate - A specific or general estimate of the person's position
- Etiquette - Established rules of conduct, rules of acceptable behavior