

Reading 2018 Questions

Read the following passage.

The passage is a section from a book about the history of the United States. It discusses the role of the federal government in the early years of the nation, particularly in the context of the Constitution and the early Supreme Court. The author argues that the federal government's power was initially limited and that it was through a series of events and decisions that the federal government's role expanded significantly. The passage highlights the importance of the federal government in maintaining the union and promoting the interests of the nation as a whole. It also discusses the challenges faced by the federal government in the early years, such as the lack of a strong executive branch and the need to establish a system of checks and balances. The author concludes that the federal government's role has continued to evolve over time, and that it remains a central part of the United States government.

[[Page 201]] (KAPPA KAPPA KAPPA)

Name _____

1. The author's main purpose in writing this passage is to	discuss the role of the federal government in the early years of the nation.
2. According to the passage, the federal government's power was initially	limited.
3. The author argues that the federal government's role expanded significantly	through a series of events and decisions.
4. The passage highlights the importance of the federal government in	maintaining the union and promoting the interests of the nation as a whole.
5. The author discusses the challenges faced by the federal government in the	early years, such as the lack of a strong executive branch and the need to establish a system of checks and balances.
6. The author concludes that the federal government's role has continued to	evolve over time, and that it remains a central part of the United States government.
7. The author's tone in this passage is	neutral.
8. The author's argument is supported by	the passage.
9. The author's argument is supported by	the passage.
10. The author's argument is supported by	the passage.

Directions: Write your answers in the spaces provided.

Write an answer to the question in the space provided.
