

When is a Pronoun More than just a Pronoun?

Sometimes both demonstrative pronouns and possessive pronouns can be used as adjectives. On the line next to each sentence, tell whether the underlined pronoun is being used as an adjective, or if it is just a pronoun.

Demonstrative Pronouns:

1. This morning, I had cereal for breakfast. _____
2. That is my new sweater. _____
3. May I have one of those cookies? _____
4. Of all the songs I can play, these are my favorites. _____

Possessive Pronouns:

1. Is that your dog running down the street? _____
2. Which of the two jackets is yours? _____
3. Brandon forgot his lunch at home. _____
4. Have you seen my new haircut yet? _____
5. I can't tell which of these socks are mine. _____
6. Ron is coming to my house for dinner. _____
