

QUESTION

ANSWERS/EXPLANATIONS

A. Every year from 1990 to 1999, the number of people who were killed on roads in the United States increased. The number of people who were killed on roads in the United States in 1999 was 42,000. The number of people who were killed on roads in the United States in 1990 was 30,000. The number of people who were killed on roads in the United States in 1999 was 42,000. The number of people who were killed on roads in the United States in 1990 was 30,000.

Each year from 1990 to 1999, the number of people who were killed on roads in the United States increased. The number of people who were killed on roads in the United States in 1999 was 42,000. The number of people who were killed on roads in the United States in 1990 was 30,000. The number of people who were killed on roads in the United States in 1999 was 42,000. The number of people who were killed on roads in the United States in 1990 was 30,000.

Every year from 1990 to 1999, the number of people who were killed on roads in the United States increased. The number of people who were killed on roads in the United States in 1999 was 42,000. The number of people who were killed on roads in the United States in 1990 was 30,000. The number of people who were killed on roads in the United States in 1999 was 42,000. The number of people who were killed on roads in the United States in 1990 was 30,000.

© 2000 by The McGraw-Hill Companies, Inc.

QUESTION	ANSWER	EXPLANATION

ANSWERS

---

---

---

---

---