

Ant Antics!

Sorting objects with two different attributes

What a mess! The Wrangler Ant has to get the ants into the correct ant hole. Help him out by placing the number of the correct ant hole on the line under each ant.

Encourage your child to sort and classify a variety of household objects, such as buttons, buttons, and school supplies. Then have your child tell you what criteria he or she used to form the groups. For example, the objects could be sorted by color or shape. Help your child move on to more challenging sorting by examining objects with subtle differences.
