

Some, Any, No + Is/Am

Some, any, no are used with countable and uncountable nouns. Some, any, no are used with singular countable nouns and plural countable nouns. Some, any, no are used with uncountable nouns.

Some + Singular/Plural Countable Nouns

a. I have some friends in London.

b. There are some people in the room.

c. I have some interesting books to read.

d. There are some people who are very kind.

e. I have some fruit juice in the fridge.

Any + Singular/Plural Countable Nouns

a. Do you have any friends in London?

b. Are there any people in the room with you?

c. Do you have any fruit juice?

Any + Singular/Plural Countable Nouns

a. Do you have any fruit?

b. Are there any people in the room?

c. Do you have any interesting books?

d. Are there any people who are very kind?

e. Do you have any fruit juice?

f. Are there any people who are very kind?

g. Do you have any fruit juice?

h. Are there any people who are very kind?

Some, Any, No + Is/Am

Some + Singular/Plural Countable Nouns

a. I have some friends in London.

b. There are some people in the room.

c. I have some interesting books to read.

d. There are some people who are very kind.

e. I have some fruit juice in the fridge.

Any + Singular/Plural Countable Nouns

a. Do you have any friends in London?

b. Are there any people in the room with you?

c. Do you have any fruit juice?

d. Do you have any interesting books?

e. Are there any people who are very kind?

f. Do you have any fruit juice?

g. Are there any people who are very kind?

Any + Singular/Plural Countable Nouns

a. Do you have any fruit?

b. Are there any people in the room?

c. Do you have any interesting books?

d. Are there any people who are very kind?

e. Do you have any fruit juice?

f. Are there any people who are very kind?