Assumed Knowledge	Hello, What's your name?, My name is ...
Vocabulary	How are you? I'm (happy, sad, angry, hot, tired/sleepy, hungry, sick, thirsty, cold, shy)
On Board	"What's your name?", "My name is...", "How are you?"
Materials	Emotions flash cards (large and small), emotions flash cards PPT, emotions cards with points on, score sheet, feelings cards for survey (one for each student), survey grid (one for each student)
Classroom Set-up	The desks would preferably be set up in groups of 4, but if they are in rows of 2 that is okay. Put a flash card showing an emotion on the wall in each corner of the room in preparation for the practice game, four corners.
Warm up exercise (Time: 3 minutes)	Greet a student and ask them "What's your name?" They should reply with "My name is..." Repeat this with a few students. Now in groups of four the students should practice greeting one another and asking their name. Student 1 should greet and ask student 2, then student 2 should do the same with student 3, student 3 with student 4 and student 4 to student 1. Explain to the students that this is a race to see which group is the fastest. When all four students have asked each other and answered the questions they should all put their hands on their head so you know they are finished.
Presentation (Time: 5 minutes)	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> Show the emotions flash cards or PPT and ask the students to repeat after you. When you say the word show the emotion yourself and ask the students to show the emotion too. By doing this the students are more likely to understand and remember the vocabulary. Mix the flash cards up (or use the practice section of the PPT) and ask the students "How are you?" They should repeat the question after you. Now show them a picture while giving them the answer "I'm (happy/sad/...)" Repeat this a few times.
