In today's "Global Community" it is ever more important that human beings, as a species, solve problems that not only affect people in their immediate communities, but also solve those problems which affect the nation as a whole. As Kate Brown, Tom Drury's book said "Together we can improve the society in which we live in but divided we shall be destroyed." The most obvious example of the benefits of a united nation solving problems together is China. Undoubtedly philanthropist Bill Gates also believes in solving problems of the United States.

When people hear the words "People's Republic of China" they
