

Self Regulation

What is self regulation?

Self regulation is the ability to flexibly respond to situations, situations and distress use calm appropriate responses. They're related, it is the ability to control emotions, thinking, behavior and actions as they are affected by situations.

In addition, self regulation involves just the other developmental processes. Children get their self control to their behavior over time.

Why is it important?

Research indicates that self regulation is critical to a predictor of academic success. Children with higher levels of self regulation score better on higher academic reading, vocabulary and math. In addition, good executive function that the ability to young children to self regulate is associated with higher, higher academic scores.

How can you help a child develop self regulation?

Here are some suggestions to help you help your child develop self regulation skills:

- Teach self regulation at a young age. Children develop the foundation skills for self regulation from before 3 years old.
 - Use self-regulation strategies to help children. Use self-regulation strategies to help children who have difficulty with self-regulation. For example, children who have self-regulation difficulties who do not have self-control to self-control skills.
 - Help children to regulate. Build attention by practicing skills and using self-control and for gradually practicing self-regulation aspects of a routine or physical activity.
 - Provide verbal or physical cues to help children to self-regulate. Use simple cues to "stop, think, act" or "stop, think, act" to help children to self-regulate.
 - Continually monitor children to determine when self-regulation can be introduced and when the children can learn to be independent in their regulation.
 - Use games to help regulate. Use self-regulation skills. Use Light + Green Light, Freeze Dance, Simon Says, etc.
 - Participate in other activities where the child needs to move to the center.
 - Use eye games that require self-regulation.
- Let's us help you help your child. If you have questions about the best approach to help your child's self-regulation.

©2014 by The Center for Self-Regulation, Inc. All rights reserved. This document is for informational purposes only. It is not intended to be used as a substitute for professional advice. For more information, please contact The Center for Self-Regulation, Inc. at 800-451-1111 or www.selfreg.org.

This document is for informational purposes only. It is not intended to be used as a substitute for professional advice. For more information, please contact The Center for Self-Regulation, Inc. at 800-451-1111 or www.selfreg.org.