

In visual perception a color is almost never seen as it really is - as it physically is. This fact makes color the most relative medium in art.