OPERANT CONDITIONING

1. Use the word bank below to fill in the sentences.

law of effect behavior modification fixed interval punishments operant conditioning	positive reinforcers reinforce continuous reinforcement fixed ratio socialization	shaping negative reinforcers rewards primary reinforcers variable ratio	variable interval partial reinforcement secondary reinforcers programmed learning operants
	is also refer	red to as instrumental lea	rning.
A response is strengthened	in a particular situation by a r	eward.
Complex tasks are broken d	lown into simple steps, each	of which is reinforced
Reinforcing small steps tow	vard the behavioral goals
Reinforcement is provided	after a fixed number of correc	ct responses.
A stimulus that increases th	ne frequency of the response.
1	require you to "get inside the	head" of an organism.
Examples include food, wat	ter, adequate warmth, and avo	oidance of pain
Guiding people into socially	y desirable behavior
Every correct response is re	einforced.
Increase the probability that	t an operant will occur when	they are applied.
Varying amounts of time ar	re allowed to elapse between	making reinforcement av	ailable
Also called conditioned rein	nforcer.
Increase the probability that	t an operant will occur when	they are removed.
Reinforcement is provided	after a variable number of cor	rect responses have been	n made.
Reinforcement schedule in	which not every correct respo	onse is reinforced
A fixed amount of time must	st elapse between the previou	s and subsequent times t	hat reinforcement is available
Aversive events that suppre	ess or decrease the frequency	of the behavior they follo	ow
Paying attention to desirable	e behavior and not reinforcing	g undesirable behavior.
Voluntary responses that are	re reinforced.
"V	1 1 1 1:1	1 6 11

"Keep away from people who try to belittle your ambitions. Small people always do that, but the really great make you feel that you, too, can become great." Mark Twain