

I Have a Dream...

Use Student Journal Entry 18 to give a reading assignment regarding the Lincoln Memorial and Dr. King's 1963 "I Have a Dream" speech. Then use the next page to illustrate the speech.

I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up and live up to the true meaning of its creed: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal."

I have a dream that one day even the sweltering heat of Georgia will give us a chance to judge each man not by the color of his skin but by the content of his character.

I have a dream that one day even the state of Mississippi, the sweltering with the evil of fear, will be transformed into the haven of freedom where the little girl will be allowed to sit with the little girl.

I have a dream that one day even the state of Louisiana, the vast, fertile land, beautiful, rich and full will be transformed into a haven of freedom where the little girl will be allowed to sit with the little girl.

I have a dream that one day even the state of Alabama, where the ministers of the gospel are still in the process of being segregated, will be transformed into a haven of freedom where the little girl will be allowed to sit with the little girl.

I have a dream that one day even the state of Georgia, the land of the future, will be transformed into a haven of freedom where the little girl will be allowed to sit with the little girl.

I have a dream that one day even the state of Alabama, the land of the future, will be transformed into a haven of freedom where the little girl will be allowed to sit with the little girl.

I have a dream that one day even the state of Alabama, the land of the future, will be transformed into a haven of freedom where the little girl will be allowed to sit with the little girl.

I have a dream that one day even the state of Alabama, the land of the future, will be transformed into a haven of freedom where the little girl will be allowed to sit with the little girl.

