

University of Phoenix Material

Learning Objectives: Research Methods

Topic	Behavior	Knowledge	Skills	Attitudes
Behavioral Objectives Identify	Identify theory explaining how an individual learns and how the brain processes information. Identify research methods learned through observation, focus groups, surveys, the group focus group, interviews, in-depth interviews, in-depth interviews &amp; focus groups, focus and the focus and use for applications for use of knowledge in research projects. Use appropriate word, phrase, clause, sentence, paragraph, and discourse organization to communicate ideas, thoughts and feelings.	Understanding of why we do the things we do. Understanding of how we learn and how we process information. Understanding of how we learn and how we process information. Understanding of how we learn and how we process information. Understanding of how we learn and how we process information.	Use research methods and techniques to collect, analyze, and interpret data. Use research methods and techniques to collect, analyze, and interpret data. Use research methods and techniques to collect, analyze, and interpret data. Use research methods and techniques to collect, analyze, and interpret data. Use research methods and techniques to collect, analyze, and interpret data.	Identify research methods and techniques to collect, analyze, and interpret data. Identify research methods and techniques to collect, analyze, and interpret data. Identify research methods and techniques to collect, analyze, and interpret data. Identify research methods and techniques to collect, analyze, and interpret data. Identify research methods and techniques to collect, analyze, and interpret data.