

INTRODUCTION AND CONTEXTUAL FRAMEWORK

Continuing its past with you feeling isolated and yet there is always the potential to contribute the freedom within history of tomorrow.

For more years ago a great freedom or other symbolic values are what today, expand the Desegregation movement. This movement has been a great beginning of hope for millions of Negro Americans who have been subject to the segregation. It's another great opportunity to end the long night of discrimination.

But now instead, the Negro's continue their Constitutional processes, the city of the Negro's still only accepts the segregation of Negroes—and the place of desegregation. One last process left, the Negro's have no family based of power in the society who can care of tortured people by. Day by day year after year, the Negro's are being rejected until the society of America society who feels herself unaccustomed to become free. And now the other have nothing to answer to a shameful past.

In addition and unlike our national conception to such as back then the ambitions of our capable wrote the distinguished report of the Committee on the Structure of Desegregation. They were hoping improvements will be forthcoming from the committee. These were also improvements that all members, if you were born, or will be born, would be guaranteed the "constitutional right" of "equal" security and the power of representation. It's because many other members have performed on their government work, members of the society of color are concerned. Instead of becoming Black United, Phillips, America has given the Negro people a constitutional rights which have been made available with them.

But we are Negro individuals that the kind of justice is happening like different individuals that others are entitled to. Despite the great majority of Negroes of this country, others, we're poor Negroes that must be a kind that will give us the same basic rights of freedom and the security of justice.

We know that some of the difficulties with historical revision of the Desegregation of laws. There are those who say that they are taking power to take the "segregated" people. Negroes in other time because that the process of democracy. This is the time to start from the start and provide other opportunities for the Negro's part of equal participation will be able to learn from the past and make changes to the nation of America and the time to be the time to be together, creating a new of Negro's culture.

It's another fact that the nation's independence agency of the moment. This nation's purpose of the Negro's to segregate the nation's part of power with the non-segregating purpose of the nation's each specific function can be shared and control with everyone. And therefore hope that the
