

Friction is the force resisting the motion of an object. The force acts in the opposite direction to the way an object wants to slide.

Directions: Illustrate and describe examples of friction that occur around you.
For example: An iron being pushed across a shirt on an ironing board

	