

The Space Shuttle

On September 17, 1976, NASA introduced the first space shuttle, the Enterprise, at a ceremony in Palmdale, California. After many years of testing, four other shuttles were built: Columbia, Discovery, Atlantis and Challenger. The Columbia was the first Space Shuttle launched on April 12, 1981 with a crew of two astronauts, John Young and Robert Crippen. After 9 successful missions, tragedy struck when the Challenger exploded in flight and an entire crew was lost. The program was suspended for a while, but resumed again with the Endeavour replacing the Challenger.
