

Input and Output Devices

Output devices receive information from the CPU, then translate it into sounds or images that we can understand.

Input devices allow us to send information to the CPU to tell the computer what to do.