

PREPOSITIONS

1. Circle all the prepositions in the following paragraph:

The van headed down the highway toward the base of the mountain. Within an hour, we had arrived at the foot of the mountains, and we began our ascent toward the summit. The heavily loaded van moved at a snail's pace up the mountain on a narrow, winding road. By noon, we had arrived at the summit, so we stopped for lunch, rather pleased at the uneventful progress we were making. The views from the summit were breathtaking.
