The Lost Sketchbook

Read the short passage and answer the questions.

Jonah loved drawing more than anything. He carried his sketchbook everywhere he went. One afternoon, after school, he sat under the big oak tree in the park to draw. When he finished his latest sketch, he packed his things and hurried home, completely forgetting his sketchbook on the bench.

Later that evening, Jonah realized what he had done. He rushed back to the park, hoping it was still there. But the bench was empty. Feeling defeated, he turned to leave when a voice called out. "Looking for this?" It was an elderly man holding Jonah's sketchbook. The man explained that he had seen Jonah forget it and kept it safe. Jonah thanked him sincerely and promised to be more careful in the future.
