In our garage, a spider makes a cobweb. It goes in and out, around and around. Every morning, the cobweb is there. In the morning, we run to the car.

"Come on, Mum!" we say. "We are late!"

Mum comes out and runs into the web.

"Oh! Not again!" she says.

"The cobweb is there every morning," we say.

"Now the spider has to make another one."

"That spider has to learn to make a cobweb in another place," says Mum.

In the morning, Mum runs into the new cobweb.

"That spider has to learn," she says.

"She's done it again!" we say.

"Mum has to learn, too!"
