Read and Think

Read the paragraph below, then answer the questions.

Labor Day is celebrated to recognize the hard work of people in many different jobs. Workers help communities by teaching students, growing food, building homes, delivering mail, caring for patients, and keeping neighborhoods safe. Labor Day is also a time to appreciate how teamwork and dedication make everyday life better for everyone.

QUESTIONS

- 1.) Why do you think every job is important to a community?

- 2.) Which worker do you think has the biggest impact on your daily life? Explain your answer.

- 3.) Imagine there were no sanitation workers for one month. What problems might happen?

- 4.) Why is it important for people to respect workers, even if their jobs are different?

- 5.) If you could create a new community job, what would it be and how would it help people?
