NATIVE AMERICAN READING

Answer each question.

Sacagawea was a Native American woman from the Lemhi Shoshone tribe who helped with the Lewis and Clark Expedition from 1804 to 1806. She assisted explorers Meriwether Lewis and William Clark by helping them communicate with Native American tribes and navigate the western parts of the United States. Sacagawea traveled thousands of miles and is honored today with statues, a postage stamp, and a dollar coin.

1. What was the Lewis and Clark Expedition?
2. What modern-day U.S. state might Sacagawea and the Lewis and Clark Expedition have crossed on their journey?
3. How did Sacagawea help the Lewis and Clark Expedition?
4. To which Native American tribe did Sacagawea belong?
