Emma loved Halloween because she enjoyed decorating her house with pumpkins, colorful leaves, and smiling ghosts. One cool October afternoon, she visited her grandmother's old house to help get ready for the Halloween party.

While carrying a box of decorations to the attic, Emma noticed a small white ghost floating near the window. It smiled and waved at her. Emma was surprised, but the ghost didn't look scary at all.

The little ghost pointed toward an old dusty box hidden in the corner. Inside the box, Emma found her grandmother's favorite Halloween decorations that everyone had been searching for. "Thank you!" Emma said with a smile. The ghost gave a happy wave before quietly disappearing.

That evening, the house looked beautiful with glowing jack-o'-lanterns, colorful lights, and fun Halloween decorations. Emma told her family about the friendly ghost, but they only smiled. Whether the ghost was real or not, Emma was happy because it had helped make the Halloween party extra special.
